ELIEZER ASÚNSOLO '98

Elie Asúnsolo '98 is a 2002 graduate of the University of Arizona with a degree in Economics and a minor in Law. Elie currently resides in Tucson, AZ with his wife Sonya and two children. During his time in college, Eliezer made an impact in and outside of Kappa Sigma. He served as Spring Fling Chair, Family Weekend Chair, and Pledge Class Social Chair. Eliezer was also a member of Arizona Allegiance and a candidate for the university's senate.

After graduation, Elie embarked on a career in commercial banking with firms such as BBVA and PNC. Eliezer now serves as a Vice President at Northern Trust, specializing in commercial lending. He remains actively involved with the University of Arizona serving as a board member for the University of Arizona Hispanic Alumni Association Board. As a Gamma-Rho alumnus, Elie serves as Treasurer for our chapters Housing Corporation.

Elie is an active volunteer outside of the university through organizations such as the Southern Arizona Leadership Council, Tucson Metro Chamber Board, and Sun Corridor Board.

"In general, I believe the fraternity is trying accomplish a noble end which is building the character of young men. The senior alumni at Gamma-Rho have done a great job with the most recent chapter relaunch by recruiting very specific members who value academics and excellence. They have also set strong parameters and guidelines which will hopefully result in better initiatives going forward. For me specifically, the Fraternity was a two-edged sword. There were many habits I developed that were less than helpful. On the other hand, many of the guys I went through school with were driven to succeed academically and that really helped me to achieve. The Greek system as a whole allowed me to develop a network and use that network to get more involved in clubs, honoraries, and various groups. I feel my university experience was greatly enhanced by being a part of Kappa Sigma."

CHAD FOUST '98

Chad Foust '98 graduated from the University of Arizona in 2001, earning his bachelor's degree in Criminal Justice Studies. Now living in Sandpoint, Idaho with his wife Meggie and son Lou, he has been the proud owner of Sweet Lou's Restaurants for over twelve years. Chad believes that the lessons he learned as Gamma-Rho Grand Master set him on the path to being a successful business owner, and he still recites the diligence quote as a daily practice. "I don't remember many great quotes from my life but that one has always stuck with me," Chad says, "being diligent with all aspects of your life is a rewarding way to live."

Over the course of the past twelve years, Sweet Lou's Restaurant has grown from a seasonal lakeside resort restaurant to three year-round locations that employ around 180 people. Earning the title of Sandpoint Chamber of Commerce 'Business of the Month' twice along with consistent recognition of excellence from within the North Idaho panhandle— including awards for best restaurant, best burger, best veggie burger, best bartenders, and best happy hour— Sweet Lou's grosses over eight million dollars in sales a year.

Chad and Meggie prioritize community involvement outside of work. With a focus on youth sports, cancer services, local animal shelters, and public education, they strive to set the example for other local businesses and community members that "we all need to give back as much as possible." Chad previously served as a director of the Sandpoint Chamber of Commerce for six years and now sits on the Board of Directors for the North Idaho College Foundation Board. In their free time, the Fousts love spending their time outdoors. Whether skiing, camping, trying to keep their driveway clear from snow, or traveling for Lou's swim meets, Chad and his family live incredibly active lives.

During his time as a Gamma-Rho, Chad gained leadership skills and lifelong friendships. Keeping most in contact with brothers Joe Everson and Mike Lees, he makes himself available for any current and potential Kappa Sigma members as the chapter makes its return to campus. "Enjoy your time in college and as a Kappa Sigma," he says to any undergraduates, "this is the time to make mistakes and boy did I. Learn from the mistakes and move forward. Just be true to yourself, your family, and your friends."

Vinnie was deeply involved in fraternity life during his time at the University of Arizona. Throughout his undergraduate years, he served in various roles within the fraternity, including Grand Master, Grand Master of Ceremonies, and Pledge Educator, demonstrating his dedication to fostering a positive and supportive environment within the chapter.

After college Vinnie embarked on a distinguished career in law, primarily focusing on public service. He initially served as an attorney and prosecutor for the US Army, where he honed his legal skills and contributed to upholding justice within the military domain. Later, he transitioned to Snell and Wilmer, a prominent law firm, where he worked as a Senior Litigation Associate, gaining valuable experience in handling complex legal matters. Currently, Vinnie serves as an Assistant United States Attorney for the United States Attorney's Office in Phoenix, specializing in the criminal division. In this role, he plays a pivotal part in prosecuting criminal cases and upholding the rule of law, showcasing his commitment to public service and justice.

Beyond his professional life, Vinnie is actively involved in philanthropic activities. Vinnie currently resides in Phoenix with his wife, Danielle.

"To this day, the very best friendships I have, are those that were made while I was a member of Gamma-Rho, Kappa Sigma. They are my closest confidants. They have always been there for me through the highs and lows. They are the people that I can count on the most. They are family. My life has been made better by their presence in it and I am grateful for the fraternity for creating the environment in which those friendships were made."

SCOTT SCHINDLER '04

Scott Schindler '04 graduated from the University of Arizona in 2008 with his undergraduate degree in Finance, and again in 2012 with a Juris Doctorate from the James E. Rogers College of Law. Today, this third-generation San Diegan is an Executive Vice President for JLL's San Diego Tenant Representation Team.

After over seven years of representing occupiers of commercial real estate in a brokerage capacity and five years as a private practice real estate attorney, Scott has built up a portfolio of established expertise in the San Diego area. His focus on building lifetime relationships with his clients and commitment to prioritizing their best interests have been paramount to his success. Outside of the office, Scott is heavily involved in his community. As Director/CFO of both the San Diego County Bar Foundation and San Diego Jewish Bar Association, he makes an effort to leave a positive impact on his city. In his free time, Scott enjoys working out, golfing, eating, traveling, and painfully supporting the Padres.

During his time as an undergrad, Scott served as Treasurer and Inner Guard for Gamma-Rho. He fondly remembers his time in the chapter as "a community of brothers with a common thread who are engaged to help one another throughout life." Scott's favorite moments in the brotherhood were during pre-session summers at the house, and he gives the following advice to current undergrads: "Learn and practice discipline and balance your academics and social life." Kappa Sigma is a brotherhood and community that will always be there... for life, even if we don't see each other often. Gamma-Rho was an amazing place where I grew immensely as an individual and as a soon-to-be professional. I took on significant responsibility at a young age, and I believe a lot of my career and personal success would not have occurred but for my participation our chapter."

role, Ed plays a crucial part in shaping the company's strategic direction and ensuring its continued success in the real estate sector.

Ed Finger '97 is a remarkable individual who has always been passionate about learning and community involvement. His academic journey began at the University of Arizona, where he majored in Geography and minored in Communications and graduated in 2000. Currently residing in Houston, Texas, Ed successfully balances his professional responsibilities with his personal pursuits.

Apart from his professional life, Ed is also actively involved in giving back to the community. He serves as a Board Member and Vice President for the Marvy Finger Family Foundation, where he contributes to initiatives aimed at making a positive impact on society. He also supports charitable organizations like KNOWAutism, the Elton John AIDS Foundation, Legacy Health, and The Montrose Center, showcasing his unwavering commitment to education, social welfare, and healthcare causes.

Ed's leadership skills shone brightly in the Kappa Sigma chapter, where he served as the Grand Master of Ceremonies, Pledge Educator, and Peer Tutor. His dedication and commitment to Kappa Sigma were not only acknowledged but also celebrated, earning him accolades such as the Outstanding Graduating Senior Award and Ritual Proficiency at the Grand Master Level.

As I reflect on the question "What do Kappa Sigma and Gamma-Rho mean to me?", my heart fills with pride and gratitude. Kappa Sigma has been more than just an organization to me; it was my home away from home, a place to cultivate lifelong friendships and a platform to develop leadership skills. Whenever I think of the memories I have made with my brothers, I am reminded of our inseparable bond. Being a part of Kappa Sigma has allowed me to grow as an individual and contribute positively to my community. I am forever grateful for the opportunities, experiences, leadership skills, and relationships I have formed. I look forward to continuing to give back to them in any way I can."

After completing his education, Ed pursued a career in teaching, working as a teacher and department head at The Briarwood School. However, his love for leadership and entrepreneurship led him to join the Finger Companies, a family business, where he currently holds the position of Executive Vice President and Corporate Director.
