SUNDAY, OCTOBER 31ST, 10 A.M.
UNIVERSITY PARK MARRIOTT HOTEL

Welcome.....

TO THE 17TH ANNUAL A.L. SLONAKER HALL OF FAME AWARDS BANQUET

The 17th Annual Gamma-Rho Hall of Fame Award is being presented by the Gamma-Rho Chapter of Kappa Sigma Fraternity on Sunday, October 31, 2004.

Conceived as a way of honoring Kappa Sigma and Gamma-Rho alumni for outstanding achievements, this award has become an integral part of our tradition here at Gamma-Rho.

Inductees are among a select group of alumni. Recognition is given to those who have excelled in their career, or in their service to the community and/or to the fraternity.

In conjunction with the A.L. Slonaker Hall of Fame inductees, Gamma-Rho also honors an alumnus as the Mike Cagalj Man of the Year each year. Men of the Year are recognized for their outstanding service to the fraternity. The award honors Mike Cagalj and all the years of service Mike provided to the chapter.

This year's A.L. Slonaker Hall of Fame Inductees are:

Sam Antcliff '61

This year's Mike Cagalj Man of the Year Award recipient is:

Sam Antcliffe '61

After nearly 40 years of being out of touch with Gamma-Rho, Brother Sam Antcliffe has more than made up for lost times. Upon graduating from the University of Arizona in 1963, Brother Antcliffe moved around quite a bit and the chapter couldn't keep up with his many address changes, eventually losing complete contact. As the chapter prepared for its move into the new house in 1995, one of Sam's former college friends, a Sigma Alpha Epsilon, wondered where his information went and the chapter quickly moved to find his whereabouts.

They were more than successful.

"I had been gone awhile and renewing those old friendships was really exciting," the now-retired Brother Antcliffe says.

He started going to luncheons and campaign meetings, and three years later, he is being inducted into the Gamma-Rho Hall of Fame.

"At first, I was dumbfounded," he says. "The Hall of Fame thing blew me away."

Brother Antcliffe transferred to the University of Arizona from the University of Wisconsin in Madison and was initiated into Gamma-Rho in 1961. He was very involved with the fraternity and university, especially in athletics, as an assistant coach for Frank San-cet's UA baseball team in 1961 and an assistant coach under Bruce Larsen's men's basketball team in 1962-63.

"In those days, the intramural winners would get to play the UA freshman team before a varsity game. And we beat them!"

In an age where rival fraternities were closer than they are today, intramural competition was friendly but intense. Antcliffe led the Kappa Sigma team to three consecutive intramural championships.

"In those days, the intramural winners would get to play the UA freshman team before a varsity game," Antcliffe recalls. "And we beat them!"

Together with his roommate and Gamma-Rho legend Uncle Don Harris and his other brothers, Antcliffe says he enjoyed the social side of college life, as well.

“We basically moved in, ruined the house and left,” he laughs. “The big memories are luau, especially the one where we had a ‘Roaring 20’s’ theme,” he says. “We filmed it and made a movie out of it. We were dressed up as two rival mafia gangs.”

Other memories he has are trips in a U-Haul to Las Vegas and Mexico, the Greek Olympics and serenading the sororities.

Today, Brother Antcliffe is retired and living in Chandler, but is occasionally a substitute teacher at the Tempe Union High School District. Previously, he was a teacher and head basketball coach at Parker High School, at Hueneme High School in Port Hueneme, California and Oxnard College in Oxnard, California. He also served as an assistant baseball coach at Pepperdine University, Fort Lewis College in Durango, College, and the head basketball coach at Marcos de Niza High School in Tempe.

He is a member of the Arizona High School Coaches Association, National Education Association and Arizona Education Association. He’s coached two Arizona state high school basketball champions and was the Channel League (California) Coach of the Year in 1972. In addition to Gamma-Rho events, he’s been involved in UA baseball and basketball reunions.

Brother Antcliffe has three children—Lori, 46, Camille, 41, and John, 36.

“It’s very rewarding to go back and visit and see all those old friends again,” he says. “My involvement with Kappa Sigma changed my life. Having been actively involved in athletics since the seventh grade, it gave me a new outlook on life I had never experienced. It was a stepping stone to a career in teaching and coaching that I will always hold dear to my heart.”

William Steven Dean '84

Often times, you do not understand the full meaning of something you are a part of until after you leave it. That certainly was the case for Brother Steve Dean.

“I did not fully appreciate the true meaning of Kappa Sigma until well after graduation,” he says.

Brother Dean was initiated in the Spring of 1984.

“More than anything, I liked the guys that were in the house at the time,” he says. “It was all about making new friends. When you’re an undergrad, everything is fun at the time and you don’t realize the friends you make then are going to last longer into your life.”

During his time on campus, Brother Dean made the Dean’s List and was a volunteer for ASUA, the student government. At Gamma-Rho, he was assistant house manager, head pit cook and FUBAR pool engineer.

After graduating in 1988 with a Bachelor’s Degree in Economics, he obtained his Master’s Degree in Economics at the University of Washington in 1994.

The real meaning of Kappa Sigma began to hit home when he started getting more and more involved as an alum. He became Director of the Gamma-Rho Chapter Housing Corporation and, in continuation of his duties as head pit cook, he helped coordinate the installation and opening of the main kitchen at the new house, managing the final construction.

Today he is the Finance Manager for Bourn Partners, LLC, a commercial real estate development group in Tucson. Previously, he was a commercial real estate manager and First Vice-President of Bank One from 1994-2004.

He volunteers in the Metropolitan Pima Alliance, is the Director of Pima County Real Estate Research Council and President of the Tucson Regional Water Council.

“I didn’t realize that there were a lot more friends that you’d make when you’re an alum,” he says. “You always continue to make friends.

“Most of my adult friendships were made while I was in school and all of them were due to Kappa Sigma. Without the fraternity, I would probably not have met my wonderful wife, Patty. My professional life has also benefited directly from the alumni network.”

He and Patricia Dean were married in 1987 and today have three children—James, 11, Melissa, 9, and Allison, 4.

2004 Gamma-Rho Man of the Year Award Ryan Anderson '94

When he arrived at the University of Arizona in the fall of 1993, Brother Ryan Anderson had lofty goals. “When I met Ryan as a freshman, he spoke of one day becoming president of the United States,” his best friend Jeff Klinger '94 says. “I was not really sure what to think about that when I first met him. It was a lofty goal. As the years went on, I realized that Ryan was serious.”

Eleven years later, Brother Anderson may or may not be pursuing a career as leader of the free world, but he has had his share of triumphs along the way. He started by becoming president of the Gamma-Rho Chapter as a sophomore and joining the Inter-Fraternal Council on the UA campus, as well as making the Dean’s List from 1995-1997.

He also helped Gamma-Rho transition from a smaller group of brothers to a large organization that is a major player at UA.

“Ryan helped motivate everyone else to believe we didn’t have to be an ‘also-ran’ fraternity, but could become one of the leading organizations on campus,” Schneider says. “He didn’t just say it, but demonstrated it by rising to prominence within student government and in the social circles. Many people would agree that he was a pivotal force in changing the mindset of the fraternity into a ‘winning’ culture.” He graduated from the UA in 1997 with a Bachelor of Arts Degree in Political Science and English and then went on to attend law school at Southwestern College in Downtown Los Angeles, where he met his future wife, Dina.

While at Southwestern, he served as a law clerk for the Law Office of Franklin L. Ferguson, Jr., in Los Angeles and the Hate Crimes Division for the Los Angeles County District Attorney.

At the Law Office of Franklin L. Ferguson, Jr., he drafted appellate opening briefs, reply briefs and other legal memoranda; prepared questions for depositions; attended settlement conferences; summarized discovery for various cases; and performed legal research.

For the L.A. County District Attorney, he served as law clerk for four attorneys, conducted legal and factual research for trial preparation and provided support for jury and bench trials.

While at the UA, he served as a special assistant for legal issues for Pima County Parks and Recreation, writing contracts and intergovernmental agreements between Pima County and other state government agencies, serving as a liaison for County Board of Supervisors on contractual issues in Pima County and developing template contracts for Recreation department.

After graduating law school in May 2001, Ryan and Dina moved to Phoenix, where he joined Patrick Murphy's law firm, Guttilla & Murphy PC, as an associate. He has case responsibility for Federal and State Receiverships, including depositions, discovery, pleadings and motions, as well as appearances in State and Federal Court.

Of course, for all of his professional achievements, Brother Anderson's acceptance of the award couldn't come without some good-natured ribbing from his buddies, especially when it involves "The Anderson Factor."

"The Anderson Factor was when you had a certain level of reality, but Ryan would magnify everything,” Steve Napoles ’94 said.

“Ryan was known as the ‘Two-Beer President’ because it only took him two beers to get drunk,” Klinger says. Adds Napoles: “We’d go to Dirtbags and everyone would spend $15-20, but Anderson would spend $3 on two beers and claim that he spent and drank as much as everyone else.”

Another case of The Anderson Factor has to do with Ryan’s all-state football and basketball career at Webb High School in Claremont, California—or lack thereof.

“Ryan’s always the first person to jump to help the fraternity. He’s very motivated and very driven to succeed, career-wise and socially in the fraternity.”

“The joke is that he never played football there, which we only found out when I brought up his exploits unknowingly in front of his brother Matt, who shot the whole thing down,” Schneider says. “He’ll hate me for reminding him of that, as I usually do, but it’s so much fun.”

When the brothers moved into the new chapter house in 1995-1996 school year, the chapter decided to get a large Christmas tree for its Christmas party. However, a few of the brothers, Anderson included, played a prank on House Manager George Jenson and removed half the branches and applied various ‘decorations’ to the tree. When Jenson saw this, he went ballistic and ordered the culprits to fess up and fix the tree. At the last moment, Anderson—always the hero—‘found’ the branches in the maintenance room, even though he was the only one with the master key, and took all the credit.

Where would a good Man of the Year be without a little humiliation from others? Besides, it’s clear to everyone around him that Brother Anderson has done plenty to become the youngest-ever Gamma-Rho Man of the Year.

“Ryan’s always the first person to jump to help the fraternity in any situation,” his wife Dina says. “He’s very motivated and very driven to succeed, career-wise and socially in the fraternity. He always talks about his years in the fraternity and what a great thing it was being a member of the fraternity and everything after.”

Brother Anderson recently completed his duty as Gamma-Rho’s “Trustee” during their recent struggles and is currently the Secretary on the Housing Corporation Executive Committee.

“Ryan is the most driven person I know,” Klinger says. “Countless people are positively affected by your achievements and accomplishments. I know that he will continue to positively impact many people’s lives in the pursuit of his dreams.”

“Bottom line is that Ryan Anderson commanded respect and deserved it,” Schneider says. “He still does. . . .and this is just the beginning for what will become a long and distinguished career of prominence and service.”
